WHAT IS spnm ?

From contemporary jazz, classical and popular music to that written for film, dance and other creative media, spnm is one of the main advocates of new music in Britain today.

spnm was founded in 1943 and continues to fulfil and build upon the brief that spurred its existence: to promote and advance the education of the public by encouraging the understanding, appreciation and development of music composed by living musicians born or resident in the UK, and of music generally as expressed in any other medium or form.

spnm achieves this through its eclectic annual programme of concerts, events, workshops and collaborations and through its two publications new notes and beat magazine. Guest artistic directors add their own special flavour: Joanna MacGregor for the 1999/2000 season and Steve Martland for 2000/01.

Through its award-winning work with composers of all ages, spnm generates an interest in the new. Work is brought to the public ear through partnership, dialogue and interaction with performers and audiences. Through this process the mystery which has surrounded the composition of new music is dispelled.

There are no boundaries. spnm will continue to develop this forum of inspiration and support for audiences, performers, composers and other creative artists over the next fifty years and beyond.

- ♦ promotes composers and performs their works written in any style
- ♦ presents concerts, seminars and workshops throughout the UK
- ♦ researches and implements ground breaking musical activity for 16-19 year olds
- ♦ provides a platform for collaboration across many creative disciplines
- ♦ publishes the monthly listings magazine new notes and beat magazine for 16-19 year olds
- ♦ provides resource materials for teachers and composers spnm was awarded the 1996 Prudential Award for the Arts, music category.

spnm also administrates the British Section of the International Society for Contemporary Music (ISCM).
